France's Disgrace

News of the Conviction of Dreyfus Has Aroused Feelings of Anger and Disgust.

All London Excited—American Newspapers Condemn Verdict
in Strongest Terms

Paris Figaro Tells Some Touching Stories Regarding the Captain's Two Sons

(Associated Press.)

London, Sept. 11.—Though the positistic tone of the correspondents during the last few days had somewhat prepared the people for the worst, the actual news from Rennes of the verdict of guilty of Dreyfus came like a thunderbolt to London yesterday. To say that sorrow and disappointment prevailed would be utterly inadequate. The feeling aroused is really of mingled anger and disgust.

The news spread like wildfire throughout London, banishing every topic, even the Transvaal, and it was possible to hear men talk of France and Frenchmen in terms not heard before in modern times. It seemed as though the old hatred of France, which had long been dead and buried, based up at once.

This is probably a passing effect, but the coolest and most impartial Englishmen are convinced that the affair will now, more than ever, prove an awful blow to the unhappy Republic.

The News at Washington.

Washington, Sept. 11.—When the news that Dreyfus had been convicted became known in the executive departments of the government, the greatest indignation was expressed by officials and in fact, everybody, down to the humblest laborer. In the war department, where the army officers have followed the newspaper accounts of the trial very closely, the comment on the verdict was particularly severe. Of course, no official of the government would permit himself to be quoted in regard to the case, but privately several of them expressed themselves in terms of indignation.

Demonstration at Buda Pesth.

Buda Pesth, Sept. 11.—After the news of the verdict in the Dreyfus case reached here, a large crowd assembled in front of the French consulate, crying
"Down with the council of war," "Down with the generals," and "Long live Dreyfus." The police dispersed the crowd.

The Captain's Children.

Paris, Sept. 11.—Some touching particulars regarding the children of Captain Dreyfus are given in the Figaro today. There are two, Pierre, nearly 8 years old, and Jean, who will be six next April. They are growing up without seeing the black cloud lowering over their heads. Motherly tenderness has made their home so sweet a prison that they do not think of going to school where other children work, and when they play happily together their mother repays playmates for them. It is with her that they go out for walks every day. It is she who tells them amusing stories to make them laugh while her own heart is heavy with grief.

One day, long ago, their father did not come home at night. To appease the children's curiosity Madame Dreyfus said the Minister of War had ordered their father away on a mission to a very far off country. This piece of deception has been practised on them ever since.

At last the great news arrived at the house that Dreyfus had come back to France. Then the pious deception had to be complicated in all kinds of ways to allow of the mother going to Rennes to see her husband. The children did not hear very patiently this separation from their mother. Madame Dreyfus received a letter at Rennes the other day saying Pierre was quite angry, and that he and Jean were not convinced that it was necessary for their mother to stay away so long.

"Why," wrote Pierre, "does not father after having been away so long, ask for 43 hours' leave of absence to come to Paris?" He said he could not believe the Minister of War could refuse his father such a small favor as that, and now what story will the poor mother tell them?

Verdict Condemned.
New York, Sept. 11.—The newspapers throughout the United States, without exception, to-day condemn the Rennes verdict in strong terms.

The following extracts from editorials in the leading papers show how universal is the feeling of indignation.

The New York Times: "Against their
(the judges') action the conscience and judgment of the world will protest. It still remains true that a most terrible wrong has been repeated, and that in France real justice may not be done.
The very facts that we must recognize in judging the judges, chosen from among the officers of her army, discredit the character of her president and make us

Contemplate Her Future
with apprehension, for there is no safety for a nation in which any such obstacles can stay the course of justice.
There is no such peril for any land as the fact that under the shield of its laws
the innocent are not safe."

The New York World: "It has been said France was on trial at Rennes.
That was true. The administration, the character, the honor of the French army was on trial there as soon as it became certain that Dreyfus hadn't communicated the documents enumerated in the bordereau, but

Now France is on trial.

although not at Rennes, not anywhere within her own borders, but at the bar of civilization. French officers have, in the name of France, spoiled the face of justice. Will France sustain them? Will she repudiate them? The nations of the world wonder and wait and watch.
France is at the bar."

The Boston Herald: "The action of the court martial at Rennes is hardly a surprising outcome of the trial, which has been for weeks past going on in the little Breton town. It has not been a question of the administration of justice.
From first to last it has been a conflict between two opposing parties, neither of which was probably willing to consider the question in an Entirely Impartial Manner.

It does not seem possible, under the circumstances, the government of France can permit the punishment of this attached criminal to take place."

The Boston Post: "The verdict will be generally recorded throughout the civilized world as a monstrous wrong. It is a pitiful spectacle, a sorry exhibition for the republic of France, and it carries its warning. The Dreyfus verdict is the flower and fruit of militarism. In the conduct of this affair military absolutism is overriding the rights of the individual, prostituting the forms of justice, elevating forgeries above the truth and consummating a national shame."

The Washington Evening Times: "The action which would allow such a

Hideous Crime Against Justice and humanity to go unredressed and unpunished, need not expect to escape certain and terrible retribution."

The Chicago Chronicle: "The honor of the French army may be saved, but the honor of the French people will not pass unchallenged in Dreyfus's second conviction."

The Tribune and Chicago Times-Herald comment in like manner, and the latter says: "The people will wonder now when 'The man on horseback' is to appear."

Steamer Tees Returns to Port
With a Budget of Late News.

The Output of Next Season Will

Before.

The True Version of Alex. McDonald's Assignment: Alleged Smugglers Arrested.

How the Earth Trembled at the Head of Lynn Canal.

A Scheme to Bring Dyea to Skagway on Scows: Indian Family Murdered.

Following close behind the Cottage City, which broke the Pacific Coast S.S. Co.'s usual procedure by arriving in daylight, steamer Tees, Capt. J. Goss, returned from Lynn Canal ports on Saturday evening. She had 46 passengers, mostly Klondikers, who left Dawson on August 27th and 28th, some coming up the river on the steamer Canadian and some on the Florence M. There were several Victorians among the passengers. W. H. Price returned from Dawson, where he has been looking to the handling of the Dawson freights. W. Jensen, of the Dallas, and A. L. Belyea came back from Atlin. According to purser Munro there was about $6,000 in gold on the Tees.

J. W. Anderson, who returned after spending two years in the Klondike, in an interview given on the steamer, said: "I do not hesitate to say that the district is exceptionally rich, but I would like to say, for the benefit of anyone going in, that it is no longer a poor man's country. The thawing machine and other methods that money can command are fast superseding the crude methods of the poor miner. With the exception of a few fabulously rich claims, nearly all the good claims will be worked with machinery. The larger companies, such as Alex. McDonald's or the Grand Forks, Bonanza and Klondike, Ltd., have cornered a good many of the rich paying claims, and will do extensive work on them the coming year."

"Mr. Marks, manager of the Grand Forks, Bonanza & Klondike Co., who I met at Dawson, says his company is making preparations for extensive operations this winter. Mr. Marks has a theory as to how a large percentage of the waste work performed at present can be done away with. If the paystreak be carefully followed up in the drift, the waste work—if it cannot be done away with—will at least be minimized. He believes that owing to the improved methods of mining now in use in the Klondike, the output for the coming year will far exceed that of any year in the past."

Alex. McDonald's Assignment.
Another Klondiker, who arrived on Saturday, was Dick Lowe. He gives the true version of Big Alex. McDonald's reported assignment. It was a mere banking formality. McDonald had given an assignment to the Bank of B. N. A. to protect an overdraft until such time as the cleanup was made. Mr. Lowe says the last of the steamers bound to St. Michael's has left Dawson, and what gold is left at Dawson will come out via Skagway. He is bound to Chicago in connection with a big mining deal, and hopes to return before navigation closes. Should he have no connection with the steamer, he has his dogs with him, and will go in over the ice.

In regard to Cape Nome, Dick Lowe has great faith in the new diggings. Geo. Hermann, a friend of his, who has a claim on Birch creek, which was paying $10 per day, went to the Nome placers, and in a letter to Lowe said he had a lay on Anvil creek, and was fully satisfied with it. This means that claim must be paying about $40 per day, for as there is no timber there, and the pay dirt has to be spread out in the sun in this layer to be dried, Hermann would not remain for long.

Mr. Lowe gives the news that Big Alex. McDonald is to come out to the coast very shortly. He will leave Dawson about the middle of this month, and arrive about the close.

His brother-in-law, J. Chisholm, came down with Lowe, and will accompany sister, Mrs. McDonald, from Vancouver to Dawson, so that she may make the trip out with her husband.

Skagway Was Shaken Up.
Somewhere in a book which has gone into more editions than any other it says something about the man that digs a pit for another falling into it himself. According to news brought by the Tees Skagway is likened unto that man. While a meeting was being held there to discuss a project to move the rival town of Dyea to take the whole camp and move it house by house on scows and otherwise to Skagway to augment the growing city at the head of Lynn Canal, Skagway has moved—not by a rival community or by any human agency. There was an earthquake.

For twenty seconds—some say half a minute or more—the earth shook, ceilings cracked, partitions came down, and buildings swayed and trembled as though the foundations were giving way. No damage was done, but Skagwayans, to whom the shock was new, wondered whether the earth had hit anything on its way around its own axis. The earth seemed to be waiting and clinging to the north to the south and then when tired of this movement reversed and for some time "sashayed" east and west.

The meeting for the discussion of the annexation of Dyea had just begun when the shock started, at 3:25 p.m., and the trembling of the building caused a speaker to fall to the floor. Other ers staggered as though they were at the public opening of a new school. But as said before, "Skagway" survived the earthquake as it went through many other things for something is everlastingly happening to Skagway. She survived the dread Taku hurricanes, the fierce "Chinooks," the plague of the dead horse trails, the spinal meningitis epidemic, the Sooty Smith regime, the railway riots and the big fires. So after these things an earthquake was a mere detail.

Will Annex Dyea.
To return to the scheme for the moving of her rival gateway city, which leads to the Chilcoot trail, the project, which is both novel and mammoth in its proportions is to move all the buildings in Dyea which are worth moving over to Skagway. The promoters of the enterprise who have been working on the project for some time, are San Francisco men, F. Romo and E. Foreman. The scheme was conceived by Mr. Foreman who made money in a similar venture in California. Mr. Romo is a capitalist and contractor. He made considerable money some years ago in contract work on the Panama canal, three-quarters of a million dollars were squandered, however, by him in endeavoring to find an island—supposed to be an Adames Eden—in the South Seas.

Mr. Foreman has been quietly at work securing houses in Dyea, and has already closed a deal for 320 buildings, large and small. An army of men will be required for the work, but nearly all of them have already been engaged. The plan is to bring the houses across on scows. Some of the better class of buildings with good floors will be caulked and floated across the bay. The Olympic hotel and other large buildings will be taken across in a number of scows bunched together. Lots have already been secured upon which to place these buildings. Mr. Romo, however, is still buying lots and employing men to carry out the plans. The work is to commence as soon as the house-moving outfit arrives from San Francisco. A tug will be secured here or on the Sound for the work. It is estimated that all the buildings which are worth anything at all in Dyea, are worth about $200,000. In a good many cases the lots have been bought with the houses and these will be used next summer to raise vegetables.

Alleged Smugglers.

News is given by the Tees of the arrest of four of her passengers on the up trip. Victor Gilmer, Jacques Hess, John Hall and T. S. McClelland, charged with attempting to smuggle diamonds and other jewelry valued at a small fortune, into Skagway. The arrest took place on Monday last soon after the arrival of the Tees. The alleged smugglers were traced across the continent from Montreal, for it seems their intentions had been learned by the American customs. They were shadowed from the time they left the East until their arrival at Skagway. Even on the steamer they were under surveillance, an officer from Port Townsend having boarded the steamer here. During the voyage he ingratiated himself with the quartette and found opportunity to see their diamonds, watch-movements, etc., which they intended to smuggle in. A second officer boarded the steamer at Port Wrangell and the two effected the arrest of the men at Skagway. One managed to evade arrest. The jeweller, which is now in the possession of Collector Andrews at Skagway—he having seized it—was carried in belts around the men's waists. The men had a quantity of merchandise billed through to Dawson, and say that the unmanifested jewelry was also for Dawson. They were put under bonds in the sum of $3,000 each, which had not been given when the Tees left.

A Family Murdered.

News is also given of the murder of five Indians at Wrangell Narrows. The news was brought to Juneau by Marshal Grant. He says that the Wiggs family were taking the narrow and that other Indians camped near the manufacturing "hooch" and that the Wiggs being temperate refused to join in and drink. The Indians, fearful for the secret of their liquor, murdered the entire family.

Crooked Creek Strike.

A new strike is reported on Crooked creek, a small tributary of Stewart river. Meagre reports are given of it, but it is said to show plenty of gold. The straggled to it was wholly from Stewart river and the up country. Dawson did not get on it, and little is known of it there. Dawson got left on the Thistle creek strike and has not much faith in the creek.

Accident to Sybil.

The Sybil, the Canadian Development Company's lower river boat that was put on the upper river run, is reported to have broken the cable at Five Pines on her recent trip up, and to have also met with an accident on the down trip, and had a narrow escape. Her down passengers are said to have been transferred to the Canadian and taken on to Dawson.

New Telegraph Line.

According to news received by the Tees the government will shortly commence the construction of a telegraph line from Tagish to Atlin. The distance is about 115 miles and will run east from this point to the north end of Atlin Lake and then southeast to Atlin City. A very good telephone system is in operation in the Atlin country, and with a telegraphic outlet the service will be far more satisfactory.

The telegraph line is now within 100 miles of Dawson City, and before the 20th inst. the Klondike will have telegraphic communication with Skagway. The police have received instructions to move rigidly than ever examine all persons going down the Yukon relative with a year's supplies. Persons without $500 or 800 pounds of food are required to produce documentary evidence as to their residence in the Klondike, or will be turned back out of the country.

On the way from Ottawa are two fine equipped patrol launches for police service, capable of running twenty miles an hour.

"Murdered Men" Return.

Among those who accompanied the Klondikers who returned by the Tees, to Skagway, were two "murdered men."

George Bowman and his partner, William Johnson, on a recent trip to Skagway last year the Associated Press sent out a story from Seattle on the strength of a report brought down by one J. C. Sachs, that Bowman had been murdered in cold blood by his partner, Johnson, near Dawson. This story was the subject of broadcast and got to the two men's friends and relatives, not only in America, but in Edinburgh, Scotland, where the two were raised. It created no end of worry, and scores of letters were hurried to the Klondike to get further particulars. Finally the two Klondikers heard the news themselves, and were not long in getting a contradiction of the story on its way to their friends. The published reports of the murder were told with much exactness, and one Ed. Calhoun, a partner of the man Sachs, "saw the murder committed."

Bowman and Johnson never heard of a man named J. C. Sachs, and cannot account for the story at all.

Bowman was once a prominent cyclist, and was superintendent of a bicycle factory at Bridgeport. His father is a prominent divine of Edinburgh, and the Edinburgh Scotsman has an account of the "murder" with a picture of the "murdered" man.

Steamer's Sparks Caused Fire.

Bowman and Johnson have recently come from Thistle Creek, the new diggings above Stewart river, where they have been at work for some time. On June 30, while they were away up the creek working their claims, a passing steamer, the Ora they say, ignited their cabin on the bank of the Yukon, and the Thistle Creek diggings were destroyed. News of the fire was carried up the creek, and they hastened down, but everything had been destroyed. They protested to the steamer people, and were given free passage up the river.

They report that the Thistle diggings are going to be.

As Good As Any
outside the Dawson district. It will require another winter to show them. There was not much done last winter, as discovery came too late and the creeks claims are not workable in summer on account of water.

Below Discovery, down to about 20, the claims show up well, and gold is found in paying quantities above up as high as 100. The bench claims are showing up well. A good deal of gold has been taken out. No one on the creek outside the owners know what the discovery claims have paid.

Haddo, Berry, Henderson, Miller, Spain, May and Webster and other early locators have been taking out gold, but they are keeping the clean-ups to themselves.

May and Webster worked an eighth on discovery, and must have cleaned up $2,000 to $3,000 in big nuggets alone. Provisions have been high on Stewart river, but there has been no shortage, and Johnson says he don't think there was a hungry man on the river last year.

From Atlin.

According to news received from Atlin by the Tees up to August 31st, royalties had been paid there on 7,100 ounces of gold, which, at $10 per ounce, is valued at $71,000.

Dog quotations are going up at Atlin with a steady demand for good ones. One hundred and fifty were secured by a representative of the Canadian Development Co. last week, and the highest figure paid was $50. It is the purpose of this company to operate an express service between Bennett and Atlin this winter, and also another from Bennett to Dawson by the winter road at present in course of construction.

Atlin has another paper, the Atlin Globe, published by William Bell, formerly of the New Westminster Ledger, and the latter end of the Vancouver Budget and the Fort Steele Prospector. A petition is being circulated asking for the appointment of a county court judge for the district. There are now 28 cases on the calendar at Atlin.

J. McKinnon, 3 above on Pine, has sold out to Messrs. Gibson and Brackett, and the latter are putting a large force of men to work.

On Friday, September 1st, steamer Gleaner broke down, and was towed in to Bennett by the Australian and Olive May.

Scientists Return.

Other arrivals from the North on Saturday were Prof. W. A. Satchell, Dr. W. Jacobson, A. A. Lawson, and Dr. W. Hunt, an expedition who went from the university of California to explore the flora of the southeastern Alaskan coast. A great amount of information as to the vegetation of Unalakleet was obtained by the scientists, and many specimens were brought down which will be placed in the disposal of the university of California. They left Unalakleet sixteen days ago on the steamer Excelsior, which vessel, as already reported in these columns, brought a number of destitute miners, from Valdez to Juneau.

Lord Brassey is going to England at the end of the present year. His term of office as governor of Victoria expires in October, 1900, but in all probability he will not serve quite the full term.

Youthful Recklessness

The natural exuberance of youth often leads to reckless acts. Young people don't take care of themselves, get over-heated, catch cold, and allow it to settle on the kidneys. They don't realize the significance of backache, but it doesn't. Urinary troubles come, then Diabetes, Bright's Disease and shattered health. A young life has been sacrificed.

Any help for it?—Yes!

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS.

These copulators of Kidney Pills are making the rising generation healthy and strong. Mrs. G. Grisman, 505 Adelaide St., London, Ont., says: "My daughter, now 13 years old, has had weak kidneys since infancy, and her health as a consequence has always been poor. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills has removed every symptom of kidney trouble, and restored her to perfect health. I am truly thankful for the great benefit they have conferred upon her."

Adventures In the North

A Scottish Mining Engineer's Interesting Experiences Among Hostile Indians.

He Predicts a Great Future for the Upper Yukon Camps.

The mining activity of the future in the golden north will not be in the Klondike, nor in Atlin, but along the upper Yukon, and especially in what is known as the Tagish mining division.

Such was the statement of Mr. Richard McClymont, a mining engineer of Argyleshire, who returned on the Tees on Saturday night from a long tour of observation in the mining districts of northern British Columbia and of the Territories. Mr. McClymont, immediately upon leaving the Tees, took passage on the Islander for Vancouver, whence after a stay of a day or two he will proceed home to Scotland.

His statement, remarkable though it may seem, cannot be dismissed as the unwarranted opinion of an irresponsible adventurer, for two reasons. One of these is that Mr. McClymont is a thoroughly level-headed and trustworthy mining engineer, and the second is that he has gone over almost all of the district which has come to the front in connection with the stampede to the diggings in the sub-Arctic of Canada.

The route chosen was via the Stikine river and Teslin lake, on the shores of which camp was made for the winter. When the rivers opened in the spring he and his companions dropped down the river to Dawson City, where they made a short stay and then came up to the White Horse, and afterwards went into Atlin.

It was while at White Horse that Mr. McClymont's attention was attracted to the wonderful quartz showings which are being passed almost unnoticed in the general fever for placer diggings. Six miles back from the rapids Porter brothers, old Kootenay miners, are working on a large ledge which promises to become one of the biggest quartz properties in the country. The ledge is about 100 feet wide and the cropping can be traced for over a quarter of a mile.

Of course, there are occasional bonanzas (paycock copper). A good average of the ore being taken out is $47 a ton, and Mr. McClymont estimates the ore in sight at 100,000 tons. There is no excitement, work being carried on in a quiet way, and the majority of even those who know of the Pueblo property, as it is called, pass it by with a slight account compared to the more immediate profits to be derived from the operation of placer claims. It is understood that the B.A.C., who own the Le Roi, are interested financially in Porter brothers' venture.

Although he did not make a critical examination of the ore, Mr. McClymont believes it is of slight account compared to the more immediate profits to be derived from the operation of placer claims. It is understood that the B.A.C., who own the Le Roi, are interested financially in Porter brothers' venture.

All that belt of country in which is included Taku, Tagish, White Horse and much of the territory on the upper Yukon, is, in his opinion, gold bearing rock, and although he has not yet required any extensive properties, he intends returning from Scotland next year with a party to thoroughly explore the district, if not diverted to Australia by interests which he holds there.

Mention has already been made of the fact that the winter was spent in camp on the west shore of Teslin lake. Here the engineer and his companions, finding themselves stalled for the winter, and the season of hunters and trappers to keep the larger supplies, Caribou, moose and smaller game fell to their rifles, but even the fresh meat thus obtained did not prevent the inroads of the deadly scurvy, the whole party being laid up with it. Even worse than the scurvy was the hostility of the Tagish Indians, who never friendly to the white man, had become greatly incensed at the invasion of their hunting grounds by these palefaces, with their superior weapons of the chase. They still employ the bow and arrow, even in stalking the biggest game. Some of the bows were secured by Mr. McClymont, as curios, and were shown by him to the time they differ from the ordinary Indian bow in that they are strung on the convex side. The arrows are tipped with barbed steel, and shot by a skilled hunter, with terrific force, are most deadly in their effect.

The Tagish Indians are the most treacherous of any of the northern tribes. They dwell on the country in nomadic bands, with no fixed place of residence, and the man who is found wandering or alone stands very little chance of escaping with his life. Many a prospector who attempted to penetrate the fastnesses of the tribe, and who has never since been heard of, fell beneath their tomahawks. Mr. McClymont believes that if the truth were known, the names of many unfortunate prospectors are on the death roll of these vindictive braves.

One man he met at Teslin owed his life to the fortunate fact that a doctor was included in the party, and carries a great scar on his neck as a silent witness of his narrow escape. Four years ago, with two companions, he was pushing through the Indians' territory when they found that they were being tracked by the natives. The latter, who numbered almost a dozen, finally overtook them and intruded their society on the white men. Finally, one of the whites, happening to glance back over his shoulder to see if his companions were coming, received a brutal slash in the neck from the long knife of one of the braves. He staggered for a moment, and, quickly wheeling about, knocked out the brains of his assailant with a club. The Indians then beat a retreat.

The influx of a large number of whites via the Klondike Creek trail, which has been the cause of the increased hostility from which Mr. McClymont luckily escaped by always travelling well armed. But one of his men had an escape so narrow that he is likely to escape very unfavorable opinions of the Tagish braves all his life. Some trifling incident had arisen with the Indian tribes regarding the route to be followed and one of the fellows turning snuffly on the party asked if they thought "one Indian lie." He withdrew from them, evidently nursing deep resentment. Later in the day one of the company was returning to his tent, alone and unarmed, when he heard a swishing sound in the snow, and looking down saw an Indian arrow lying at his feet. He hurried his footsteps, but had not proceeded many yards when a second arrow flew past his arm. The man now broke into a run and just reached his tent as a third shaft pierced among the trees, but fortunately was deflected in his fall designs on the explorer's life.

Regarding Atlin, Mr. McClymont expresses the belief that it is a moderately rich camp, but only of limited resources, and not at all equal to the Klondike. But if ever a permanent camp is established in the north, as was mentioned at the first, he believes it will be along the upper Yukon.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.
ORGANIZED IN VANCOUVER.

The annual meeting of the Vancouver Rugby Football Club was held last week, and a decided impetus was given the game in Vancouver by the arrangements made for the season. It was decided to hold a good series of inter-city matches, on scheduled dates, with other teams in the Coast cities, so that a good season's sport can be confidently looked forward to by lovers of the game. An effort will be made to have the season shortened, so that all the games will be over before Christmas. The following officers were elected: President, C. M. Beecher; vice-presidents, A. Jukes and J. H. Senkler; secretary, B. A. Tweedie; and captain, R. Woodward. Among the star players who will turn out this year will be G. Tache McTavish, who is known all through the East as a famous man on the football field.

THE WHEEL.
THE AUSTRALIAN CRACK.

There has been some talk of holding a fall bicycle meet at Oak Bay, but arrangements have been delayed because the promoters were anxious to secure a promise from Ben Gossford, the Australian marvel, and 5 mile champion of the world, to take part. It is now learned that this promise has been obtained, and that in addition T. H. McCarthy, the Canadian flyer, will also take part. In all probability a circuit will be arranged, including Vancouver, Victoria, Duncan's and Nanaimo.

HOCKEY.
MEET TO-MORROW NIGHT.

All members of the Victoria Hockey Club are reminded of the postponed annual general meeting, which takes place to-morrow evening.

Enjoying Breakfast.

Do you enjoy your breakfast? Many people do not, especially during this warm weather. Ever wake up with a feeling of "goneness," faintness, and a general lack of energy? No desire whatever to eat breakfast? A teaspoonful of in a tumbler of water, taken then, will tone up your stomach, infuse energy into your system, and give you a natural appetite for your breakfast.

Then you'll know the pleasure of enjoying breakfast.

James Auld is a gentleman who does not pay sufficient attention to the rights of the city in regard to keeping sidewalks unobstructed, and the chief of police has decided to teach him a lesson. He paid $2 cost and the case was withdrawn.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the Salvation Army wedding, which takes place this evening in First Presbyterian Church, the contracting parties being Adjutant Aikenhead and Adjutant McGill. The lady was stationed in Victoria some years ago, and Adjutant McGill has recently returned from the North. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple will leave by the steamer for Vancouver, proceeding thence to Skagway, where they will take charge of the Army work at the Gateway City.

Secretary Malin's, of the Royal Agricultural and Industrial Society of B. C., wishes it to be known that manufacturers who intend exhibiting at the Provincial exhibition in New Westminster, October 3, 4, 5 and 6, will do well to make application for space at once, as the spaces are being rapidly taken up. A plan of the interior of the buildings may be seen at M. R. Smith & Co.'s, Fort street. Enquiries are being received from intending exhibitors of stock in all parts of the province, and in all probability the attendance will be a record.

The repentant thief who took what was left from two houses on Stanley avenue has now returned all the money stolen from Mr. Andean and from Mr. Harry Jones. Mr. Andean is still out a dog whistle, and would be glad if the marauder would also return that. As the use of money is worth something it is perhaps only right that Mr. Jones should receive 90 cents more than the stolen money, and Mr. Andean suggests a similar remittance to him would be in order. There is no trace of the guilty party.

In an article in Saturday's Times, reference was made to the elder brother of Dr. G. L. Mackay, the Komoran missionary, in which an unconscious injustice was done that gentleman. Although Mr. Mackay has charge of a number of cabins on Johnson street, they are admirably conducted and are used by only the more intelligent and higher type of workmen. A number of the men who live there, like Mr. Mackay himself, are close readers of the best standard literature. Those acquainted with Mr. Mackay need not be assured that while he has not achieved the eminence of his famous brother, he is his peer in sterling worth.

An expressman, an irate citizen and a dog were mixed up in an assault case which was ventilated in the police court this morning. The dog objected to the expressman coming to the house of its master, the expressman objected to the dog's attacks, and the irate citizen objected to his canine being kicked. The expressman came out of the melee the worst of the trio, for in return to a mild kick aimed at the dog the citizen, John Mulvaney by name, gave him a nasty blow in the face. Mr. Mulvaney, like his famous prototype, is the possessor of an exceedingly quick temper, and a fondness for using his "props." The magistrate fined him $7.50 for the assault, with the alternative of 15 days' hard labor.

Entertainment Institute Hall to-night.

Of more than ordinary interest is the literary and musical entertainment to be given in Institute Hall this evening by Miss La'Dell, assisted by several of Victoria's best known and most popular soloists. The proceeds are to be devoted to the fund for installing the electric light in the Y.W.C.A., an object which alone should guarantee a large attendance. Miss La'Dell makes her debut in Victoria as a singer, being Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. McInnes, the Mayor and Mrs. Relfer, the Bishop of Columbia and Miss Perrin, Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. Grant, Hon. E. G. and Mrs. Prior, Sir Henry and Lady Craze, Hon. D. W. and Mrs. Higgins, and many others. As a delineator of character Miss La'Dell is said by those who have witnessed her performances, to be excellent, and the programme, already published in these columns, embraces many very attractive numbers. The reserve fund sale has been large and every indication is that the hall will be crowded.

—F. Victor Austin at Institute Hall to-night.

—To an ordinary person, the work of discovering a person wanted for a particular purpose, even if the person were particularly well described, would not be an easy task, but it would soon be done by long practice, united to special gifts in that direction, can accomplish wonders, and Detective Palmer, of the city police force, demonstrated such to be the case on Saturday night. Chief Sheppard received a letter from Seattle instructing him to look out for one H. Williams or Wilson, accused of stealing $150 from the Tremont hotel in Seattle, and the letter was turned over to Officer Palmer about 11 o'clock on Saturday night. A description of Williams was given in the letter, and armed with this, the detective commenced his work.

Walking on Government street he spotted a man who seemed to answer to the description, although wearing different clothes to those mentioned therein, and who had registered at the Dominion hotel as F. J. Willard, of Portland. In his room at the hotel was found a purse which tallied with the description sent from the Sound city, and in face of this evidence, Willard or Williams or Wilson, as he was called, was the man wanted. He is now in the lock-up awaiting the arrival of the Seattle police, and will wait extradition proceedings.

JOHNS BROS.

259 DOUGLAS STREET.

Mr. Clifford's Endorsation

Member for Cassiar Will Support the Eight Hour Mining Law.

Advocates a Strong Progressive Policy in Regard to Provincial Development.

Among those who reached the city from northern British Columbia on the Quetta City on Sunday, was Mr. C. W. Clifford, the member for Cassiar in the provincial legislature. His family returned with him, and although at present at their hotel, they are about to take up private residence in the city. As an old miner and as one elected as an independent member of the House, Mr. Clifford's views are interesting on the subject of mining in the northern districts, as well as on the political situation. It was upon these two points that he was questioned this morning by a representative of the Times.

"Atlin is a good camp," he said, "and will be such for many years to come. While it is one of the finest hydraulic mining countries in the world, it is also all right from the standpoint of the individual miner. I know some claims which are to-day paying from $100 to $150 daily to the man. Of course hydraulic mining cannot be proceeded with extensively until the placer claims at present being worked are abandoned, there is no place for a dump. In consequence of this fact it will probably be late next summer before the hydraulic plants are working to any extent."

Continuing, he said that while Atlin was a rich camp, it was not a large one, and unless some new discoveries were made, there would be no employment for more than 2,000 men. When he left there were about 4,000 in the country, but many of these were prospecting, and there were, consequently, very few who wanted to work who were out of employment.

The satisfactory nature of Mr. Justice Irving's work in disposing of the mining disputes was specially mentioned by Mr. Justice Irving. For one who knew practically nothing about mining matters until his visit to Atlin, he showed wonderful aptitude in getting to the inward sense of every question laid before him, and was most painstaking in his work. Much of his success, and of the satisfaction felt on all hands at the result of his work, was, in Mr. Clifford's opinion, due to the fact that in all his rulings he gave priority to the original locator. Another satisfactory feature of his rulings was that where he made a bench claim had been recorded for a creek claim, he was allowed to stand as such, if there seemed to be any ground for the locator's mistake.

Commodore Irving has succeeded in getting a very large bulk of the business between Bennett and Atlin for his steamer, the Glenora, and although some difficulty had arisen with the Ruths, a rival boat, it was not of such a character as might not occur in legitimate steamboat service. Mr. Irving had secured the control of the two wharves at Atlin City, and the Ruths found upon landing at the place that the steamer was not allowed to tie up. The matter was finally disposed of by an arrangement whereby the owners of the Ruths pay a rental of $5 for every time they use the wharf, and a wharfage rate of $2 a ton. The Ruth management are now constructing a wharf of their own.

Coming to matters political, Mr. Clifford said that he had read the descriptive report of the speech of Mr. W. B. McInnes, M.P., in the Times at the club yesterday, and had formed the opinion that Mr. McInnes's remarks were most indiscreet.

Questioned as to the influence which the change in the complexion of the provincial government would have on his position as an independent member of the House, Mr. Clifford stated his views very frankly. "I am going to support any party," he exclaimed emphatically, "which is prepared to open up this province to development and settlement. We have one of the finest countries in the world so far as mineral wealth is concerned, but it is lying there undeveloped for lack of adequate means of transportation or even of travel. Why there is the district of Cassiar which I represent—a district of 64,000 square miles—

Bark Theobald Sighted the Mysterious Vessel Yesterday Off Barclay Sound.

Was About Twenty Miles to the Westward—Had No Sails Set.

Schooner Woodbury Stranded on Wood Islands in South Eastern Alaskan Waters.

The derelict barkentine which has been wandering up and down the West Coast has been seen again. She was sighted early yesterday by Capt. Cameron, of the bark Theobald, which arrived this morning, 18 days, from Unalaska, in ballast, in tow of the tug Lorne. Capt. Cameron says the wandering barkentine was about twenty miles to the westward of Barclay Sound, and close on the land. She had no sails set, and was seemingly in distress. When the captain saw her at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, the weather was clear, and although the vessel was some distance away from the supposed derelict, he made her out plainly. The weather was perfectly calm. For seven hours the vessel was in sight, and then fog set in and covered her up. At noon the fog lifted, but a breeze from the westward having sprung up, the Theobald sailed southward, and when the fog cleared was out of sight of the vessel. Capt. Cameron said he was too far away to make out if any of the spars or upper works of the vessel were carried away. She was, however, dangerously close to the land, and looked to be the derelict. Since she was last seen the barkentine has travelled down the coast from Hesquilt. She did not get south of the Cape, the Warrimoo's officers having mistaken the barkentine Coronado, which has reached Port Townsend, for her, she having had her fore and top gallant masts carried away. The wanderer, when seen by the Theobald, was in the course of the Willapa, and the arrival of that vessel is being watched with interest, for if she does not bring in the derelict, she will probably have been of little use.

The derelict was first sighted at Calyquott, as reported on August 20th, and a week later was seen at Hesquilt. She was then drifting northward, but the winds changing, has now come down to Barclay Sound. The identity of the wanderer, what was the fate of her crew, where she came from, and how long she may have been abandoned before visiting Calyquott, go to make an ocean mystery which keeps the waters of the coast guessing.

The suggestion is made by Tacoma shipping men that the "Flying Dutchman" barkentine of the West Coast, "yas" - they have christened her - might possibly prove to be the long missing bark Discovery, which sailed from the Sound some months ago with lumber and has never since been heard from. "The sinking of a wooden lumber laden vessel is an impossibility unless the decks burst and allow the cargo to be washed clear of the ship," said one of those discussing the matter. "Now there have been a number of instances where wooden built vessels driven ashore and abandoned by the crew, have with the aid of tide and wind, worked themselves clear of the beach and started out to find" port with no one but the Delity left to help their navigation. The descriptions given by the settlers on Calyquott Sound, of the Indians and the prospector Goltz, as to the barkentine now sailing its own course along the coast, with the Discovery's build and rig. It would be strange and yet not improbable if the mysterious derelict were to prove the long missing barkentine."

News is also given by the Theobald of the wreck of the schooner Woodbury, on Wood Islands, one of the groups near the South Eastern Alaska coast, while on a voyage from Kodiak to Unalaska for coal for the A. G. Co. The news of the accident reached Unalaska on August 24—the day before the Theobald left. The company's agent arrived at Unalaska to get a boat to save her, for he thought she could be saved. She was, however, full of water when he left. The Woodbury was one of the schooners brought around from the Atlantic during the Alaskan rush.

On the way down one of the crew of the Theobald, Allan Cameron, fell from aloft and a belaying pin pierced his leg. He was brought in by the Lorne and sent to the marine hospital at Port Townsend on the steamer Walla Walla.

The department suggests that as it is in the interests of insurance companies that the most effective system of fire protection should be in vogue, they should each contribute $50 towards the cost of the wagon.

While the firemen were absent at the fire on Victoria avenue on Thursday morning their dormitory was entered and $10 secured from the pockets of Daniel McDonald, and $5 from the pockets of Joseph Martin. Mrs. Guthrie, the wife of Donald Guthrie, chief of the fire department, occupies apartments in the hall. She heard the noise made by the visitor, and looking into the men's dormitory, asked the visitor what he wanted. He replied that he wanted to see Frank Raymer. The visitor was told that he had no business there, and the thief asked her authority to turn him out in an insolent overbearing manner. Mrs. Guthrie then drove him out at the point of a revolver, not suspecting at the time that he was guilty of robbery. When the boys returned and found that they had been robbed Mrs. Guthrie was sorry that she had not held the thief.

Early on Thursday morning a masked and manfully armed thief entered the Oregon restaurant, and putting his hand to the counter, jumped over it. He held a revolver in his right hand, and with his left he commenced to open the drawer of the cash register. Joseph M. Marie, who was in charge of the restaurant, heard the noise just as the robber landed inside the counter. The pistol in his right hand was instantly brought down so that it covered Marie. Mr. Marie began to shout for help, and ran out of a side door leading into the alley next to the International and from there to Spokane street, shouting for help. About the same time the masked robber ran out of the restaurant and across Spokane street. The thief secured $16 from the drawer, leaving about $10 in silver, which he overlooked in his hurry.

The less caused by the fire in the two-story building on Victoria street will fall partially on Mr. J. E. Wise, the contractor, and partly on the Norwich Union Insurance Company. There were two buildings under construction, and Mr. Wise insured them two weeks since for $1,000 each. The loss on the two buildings will be about $1,500. The burned building was worth about $1,250, and the one adjoining was scorched and damaged to the extent of $250. Mr. E. A. Sharp, for whom the buildings are being constructed, will lose nothing. Messrs. J. Ferris, Henry Holland and J. McLeod each lost a chest of tools, while J. McLaren and J. Pearson lost a few tools. The total loss on tools was about $250. Just as soon as the insurance matter is settled Mr. Wise will commence the work of reconstructing the burned structure.

VANCOUVER.
Two accidents happened on the corner of Hastings and Cambie streets on Friday. The first was the overturning of a Stevenson stage, filled with passengers, and the second the knocking down of a rig loaded with fruit and other produce. Fortunately, no one was hurt in either accident, but new rear wheels will be required for both rigs.

The marriage of Mr. Arthur Timms, the pressman of Town Topics, and Miss Miriam Washer, a sister of Mrs. Captain Moody, and also of Mrs. Thomas Butler, was solemnized by Professor Whittington, of Princess Street Methodist church. A reception was held at the house of Captain and Mrs. Butler.

The prince is on his way to a visit to his aunt, and he will likely be in Washington, D. C., for the next five or six months.

Label Them "Dangerous."

More than ever this summer, dishonest and disreputable pharmaceutical concerns are flooding the market with cheap and worthless preparations designed to be imitations of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Some of these are even labelled "Extract of Wild Strawberry," "Wild Strawberry Compound," etc., in the hope that the public may be deceived by the name, and led to purchase them, thinking they are getting the genuine Dr. Fowler's.

Are you ready to risk your health—perhaps your life, for these no-name, no-reputation, likely dangerous, so-called, Strawberry Extracts?

For more than 40 years now Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been recognized by both the people and the medical profession as the standard remedy for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Cholera, Cholera Infantum, and all fluxes of the bowels of children and adults.

You can always rely on it in the time of need to do just what is claimed for it. But the imitations—what is their record, where the guarantee that they will cure? Think well before you take any one of them. Ask your druggist for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and we are confident you will not be refused that reasonable request.

ALASKAN BOUNDARY DISPUTE.
It is Rumored Canada Is to Have a Free Port on the Lynn Canal.

London, Sept. 9.—A representative of the Associated Press learns from a good source that the tentative agreement on the Alaskan boundary question provides for Canada having a free port on the Lynn canal, but without entailing any recognition by the Americans of sovereignty. This is to be in force until the boundary line is adjusted, the United States government adhering to its claim that it must be delimited from mountain peaks to mountain tops. In return for this free port concession, the United States will be said to gain additional privileges for New England fishermen, including the bank rights stoutly advocated by Congressman Dingley.

An order has been issued by the Indian and military authorities that in future the troops must spend the winter part of the cold weather under canvas instead of in barracks. This is done to check the ravages of enteric fever, said to be due to the proximity of the gun quarters to the barracks. Living under canvas means exile from all centres of civilization.

PUGNACIOUS PREACHERS.
Vancover's Church-Going People Scandalized by the Bitter Revellings of Rival Religionists.

Vancouver, Sept. 11.—All Vancouver is still talking about the controversy between the Zionists church, of which Rev. R. H. Simmons is pastor, and the Home Street Methodist church, of which Rev. E. E. Scott is pastor.

Rev. Simmons is a new-comer, here and, as he declared in the pulpit, he is "ignored by the whole outfit" of preachers in town. He is a Chicagoan and a product of the Zionists' flourishing school there. Some mention was made in the Times' special about the church row, which has increased in intensity rather than diminished. As Rev. Scott has gone over to Vancouver Island for a vacation—whereabouts not known—his answer to the ferocious attack made on him by Rev. Simmons will be delayed.

Rev. Scott declared a few days ago that divine healing, as taught by the Zion church, was "a damnable doctrine" and he vowed, it is said, that sickness was sent by God as a punishment. Sickness, Rev. Simmons asserted, comes from the devil, and the way he heaped ridicule upon the Methodist church for its orthodox principles, and Rev. Scott's interpretation of those principles greatly excited an over-crowded house. He is a forcible and dramatic speaker.

At the funeral of one Henderson, Rev. Scott stated indirectly—so the Zionists say—that the man's death was due to interference by the Zion disciples, who advised him to discontinue doctor and medicine and trust in divine power. The Zion people called on the man just a few days before his death, when, in fact, Simmons claimed, it was too late to do any good, and so the man died.

Rev. Scott asserted in a talk at a prayer meeting in his church that "all who sought divine healing by laying on of hands were not cured." Rev. Simmons retorted that "all who went to the Methodist church on Homer street were not converted."

Rev. Simmons called the city hospitals places where "people die like sheep in a slaughter-pen" roasted the doctors and all medicines, and dared any man to interfere with him in curing his family by faith and prayer and laying on of hands.

He replied to a long letter anent a controversy in the Victoria papers regarding the death of the McCoskie child in that city. He denied death was due to Zion's neglect and lack of power. He added a toast for the Christian Scientists. He agreed that if he misquoted the Methodist minister he would make reparation.

In the meantime two congregations of church-going folk are at logger-heads and the newspapers of Vancouver have had very little to say—in fact almost nothing—about the ministers' unbrotherly words.

REAL BULLFIGHT IN "CARMEN."
Under a perfectly typical southern sky, in the enormous arena packed from the ground to the topmost benches, a performance of "Carmen" was given at Toulouse, that for realistic effect has probably never been equalled. Everyone knows, writes the Toulouse correspondent of the London Daily Mail, that in the fourth act, while Carmen is lingering on the stage in an agony of apprehension, love and jealousy, her lover is supposed to be engaged in an imaginary bullfight behind the scenes. In the recent performance the bullfight actually took place, and the audience, after following Carmen through the first three acts, being breathing of tender love, passion, hate and jealousy, many courage, danger, glory and excitement, were quite in the mood to appreciate the spectacle presented to their gaze, when one of Spain's most famous matadors, Quintanilla, marched into the arena, followed by his picturesque troupe of gaily dressed picadors, banderilleros, puntilleros and the rest. Four magnificent young bulls from Salamanca put to the proof the skill, agility and grace of Quintanilla and his men, and at times the audience were carried away with excitement when the torero, being furnished with Riz's splendidly illustrated and illustrated program, was in the mood to appreciate the spectacle presented to their gaze, when one of Spain's most famous matadors, Quintanilla, marched into the arena, followed by his picturesque troupe of gaily dressed picadors, banderilleros, puntilleros and the rest. IT IS owing to the great skill and knowledge in composing the cuves, combining quality, purity and natural dryness with the smallest percentage of alcohol, that G. H. MUMM & Co. have gained for their EXTRA DRY such a wonderful appreciation and demand over all other brands.

MESSRS. G. H. MUMM & CO. always carry an immense stock, having made it a rule to buy very largely of fine vintages in order to tide over the poorer ones, which accounts for the uniformity and excellence of their justly celebrated EXTRA DRY, and we are pleased to state that they are enabled to supply all demands, however large, while maintaining the same high character and quality of their Wine.

We have just received 1,000 cases, three carloads, of the above Celebrated Champagne.

Steam collier Meami, which is to carry coal from Seattle to San Francisco, has reached the Sound, and her sister liner, the Matteawan, is on her way around from the Atlantic, on July 1st. In Satellite match and in the narrow of the straits. She reached Punta Arenas the next day, where she was repaired by divers so she could continue on her way, at a cost of $10,000. The vessel struck the reef on her port side. The temporary repairs consumed a month's time. She will go on the dry dock at San Francisco. The collier Tellos is on the way, bound from the Atlantic, having, according to report, been chartered by R. Dunsmuir & Sons.

Steamer Walla Walla reached the outer wharf about ten o'clock this morning, about twelve hours late from San Francisco. She was delayed by heavy cross seas and northwest winds, which were experienced nearly all the way up. No shipping was seen off the Cape—the weather was too thick. The steamer brought 143 passengers, 25 of whom were aboard here. She brought some 2,000 tons of freight, 119 tons of which was landed at the outer wharf. It consisted of the most part of fruit. The big raft of lumber sent down from Seattle in tow of the steamer Ozaria was seen off Punta Arenas. It then appeared to be all right. Despatches received yesterday, however, report the big raft drift. The tow lines snapped and tugs have been sent from San Francisco to where the 10,000 drifting logs are floating off Cape Mendocino, as they form a serious menace to navigation.

Steamer Queen will sail for San Francisco this evening at 8 o'clock from the outer wharf. The following are among those booked to sail by her: F. Finch-Similes, Mrs. Perry, J. L. Stooles, Miss R. Deane, Miss M. Brockway, R. Mack, Mrs. W. Greig, A. Aspland, H. C. Sim, Mrs. wife, Mrs. M. Bouchart, Mrs. B. Futre, Miss Howard, Miss N. O'Brien, J. C. Burgess and J. Kirpatrick.

Steamer Del Norte, which reached San Francisco a few days ago from the Puget Sound, via Dutch harbor, reports, says the San Francisco Chronicle, that two days before the sealing fleet had put in there for shelter they reported that the seal catch this year was unusually light. Heavy seas and strong gales had prevented them from lowering their boats.

The Lorne arrived from the Cape this morning bringing in the bark City of Detroit, Captain Swan, 56 days from Macassar, and the bark Theobald, 18 days from Enga, Alaska, in ballast, for orders.

C.P.R. bulletin announces that steamer Umbria, of the Cunard line arrived at New York at 6 p.m. on the 9th.

SAILED FOR NEW YORK

(Associated Press.) Gibraltar, Sept. 10.—The United States cruiser Olympia, with Admiral Dewey, sailed this afternoon for New York.

Rev. Mr. Knox conducted the services yesterday afternoon at the funeral of the son of Otto Ballhausen-Victoria West. There was a large attendance, and many beautiful floral tributes.

What is called photographing in relief is done by a Frenchman. The model is placed so that concentrated light falls upon him from opposite sides, bringing the salient points into greater prominence. Two successive films are taken, and a print obtained from these after they have been exactly superposed.

THE RIFLE.

SATURDAY'S SPOON SHOOT.

The third match in the series of spoon shoots came off on Clover Point range on Saturday afternoon. For the first class the rehearsal of the Ottawa programme was continued, with the slight variation that the 200 yard range was added to the Minister of Militia match so as to make the number of shots fired in each match approximately the same.

The weather was a repetition of that experienced on the preceding Saturday. To have a comparatively calm day on Clover Point is exceptional, but to have two such days in succession, as some of the returned members of the Ottawa team expressed it, did not seem like home. The scores made, particularly by the juniors, were very good. It is decidedly encouraging to those having these matches in hand to see the way some of the younger members of the Battalion are catching on. Quite a number of the junior shots, whose records at the longer ranges, some few months ago, were often a succession of duck's eggs, are now averaging niggles and better, and they are now beginning to feel that confidence in their skill that a wise promoter elicits at a not very politely expressed opinion of the abilities of the marker in the target butts.

As a general rule the shooter puts up ten cents to have the target verified, which is returned if a shot is found on the target, but to be properly handed over to the secretary as a slight donation to the funds of the association if the shooter has verified and indeed missed the target.

The scheme of having the old and young shots shooting side by side, though in different classes, works well. The older men are ever ready to give coaching and advice to the youngsters. The Victoria riflemen seem determined to cast away the old style of everyone for himself, first, last and all ways, and to be only too anxious that the club should not only produce the best shots in the province, but also the greatest number of best shots. This end can only be obtained by the youngsters pitching in and being determined to succeed, and by the older men remembering that there was a time when they were dependent upon others for tips and encouragement, and hence they should take every opportunity of encouraging and helping along their younger and less experienced comrades.

The match on Saturday was conducted under some difficulty, owing to the absence of the official judge. This is an article resembling a fog horn, is made of brass and is used for signalling the targets. Some of the members, it appears, were foolish enough to leave this trumpet on the 500 yard firing post last Monday, and it has not since been seen. If the person who picked it up would return it to this office or to the office of Major Williams, at Fort street, a favor would be conferred. The article in question can be of little value to the finder except to make a noise with, and it is the means of saving the Rifle Association $1.50 for each match, as it can only be replaced by a bugler, who would require that sum for his services. The lost horn was imported by the Association from Scotland, and it will take quite a time to replace it if it does not turn up.

The following is the detail of the scores: First class ranges, 200, 600 and 800, seven shots and a sighter at each range:

Gr. J. Gaven	200 000 800 Tl.
Gr. R. J. Butler	32 31 32 95

THE FIELD DAY.

Another meeting of the committee of the J. R. A. A. having in charge the arrangements for the field day of sports to take place on Saturday next, was held on Saturday evening, when the details were brought still nearer to completion. The prize list will be a good one, many of the merchants and business men having promised some very handsome and valuable trophies. The smoking concert, which will wind up the day's sports, will probably be held in A. O. U. W. hall, and an excellent programme will be prepared.
